

LAST EDITION CALL ON WEBB.

General Master Workman Powderly and Chief Devlin Visit the Grand Central Depot.

Last and Fullest Effort to End the Strike Without Further Hostilities.

All the Chiefs in Momentous Debate at the St. Cloud Hotel.

If There Is to Be a General Tie-Up It Will Be Ordered Now.

Central Makes a Futile Attempt to Win Back the Buffalo Switchmen.

Another and final attempt to obtain a just and peaceable settlement of the trouble on the New York Central road was made by the Knights this morning.

At 10 o'clock General Master Workman Powderly, with John Devlin, the Western member of the General Executive Board, left the St. Cloud Hotel and took a cross-town car to the Grand Central Depot.

Chief Sargent of the Firemen, Chief Sweeney of the Switchmen, Chief Wilkinson of the Teammen and Chief Howard of the Conductors remained behind at the hotel.

Powderly and Devlin made their way to the office of the General Manager of the New York Central road and asked to see Mr. Toucey.

Manager Toucey received the big Knights graciously, and welcomed them in the friendly manner. Chairs were at once given them, and a messenger was sent for Vice-President Webb.

Mr. Webb was found in his office a dozen feet away and he readily responded a hearty handshaking greeted them and they were seated at a table in the discussion of the troubles.

Mr. Webb then retired and stationed a clerk at the entrance with instructions to inform all callers that General Manager Toucey was too busy to be seen.

At 12:10 p.m. the door opened and Powderly and Devlin came out. The former smiled when asked as to the result of the interview, but declined to say anything. He declared that his lips were sealed as to the result of the mission until he had reported to the conference of Chiefs at the St. Cloud Hotel.

"Nothing definite has been decided upon yet," he added, however.

Chief Devlin was asked "What news?" and declined to give any information.

As soon as the big Knights had left the Grand Central Depot, General Manager Toucey rejoined Vice-President Webb and presumably informed him of what had transpired during his absence.

An EVENING WORLD reporter learned that the visit of the labor chiefs to the Grand Central was brought about by Chief Sargent, of the Order of Locomotive Firemen.

The latter said at 1 o'clock this afternoon that last evening Mr. Webb and Mr. Toucey intimated to him that they would like to meet Mr. Powderly and some members of the Board for the purpose of reviewing the situation. It was he who then induced Mr. Powderly to call this morning.

At 1:30 p.m. Vice-President Webb gave his version of what had occurred at the conference. He said, "Mr. Powderly and Mr. Devlin came to us to see if there was any chance of a meeting between the Knights and the company which the Company took in my letter sent to Mr. Powderly on Tuesday afternoon, in which I declared that there was nothing to arbitrate. They wanted to know whether there was any way of settling the dispute between the Knights and the company by arbitration. I considered this as an attempt on their part to find out without saying so in so many words whether they could have the Knight whose differences caused the trouble reinstated, or have the alleged differences submitted to arbitration. Manager Toucey told them, Powderly and Devlin that there was no possibility of the Company arbitrating in this position; that its policy had already been defined by me, and that there was no question of arbitrating," he concluded.

The reporter then sought Mr. Toucey and asked him for news of the conference. He stated, "There wanted us to arbitrate and we wouldn't, that's all."

At 1:45 o'clock after Powderly and Devlin got back from the Central Depot they went into session at the St. Cloud Hotel with the Federation chiefs named above.

It was the general belief that the critical moment had come, and that if a general strike were to be ordered it would be done now.

At 2 o'clock the Chiefs were still sitting with closed doors.

ALL UNCERTAINTY.

All sorts of rumors were flying about early this morning. At first it was stated that the men would surely be called out to-day, and that no further attention would be paid to Vice-President Webb.

Then this was denied, and the belief began to gain ground that the leaders had been able to come to a decision in the matter and that the prospect was that the conference would be prolonged indefinitely.

The members of the Supreme Council of the Federation of Railway Employees, which consists of Chief Sargent, of the Locomotive Firemen; Grand Master Sweeney, of the Switchmen; Association; S. E. Wilkinson, Grand Master of the Teammen's Association; and George Howard, Chairman of the Brotherhood of Railroad Conductors, who were in conference with the General Executive Board of the Knights of Labor all last evening, have left the Grand Union Hotel and are taken rooms at the St. Cloud, so as to be near the Knights' headquarters.

CHIEF DEVLIN ARRIVES.

General Master Workman Powderly and Committee Members Holland, Wright and Hayes were joined this morning by John Devlin, the member of the Committee from Detroit, who came down last night from Buffalo, where he has been organizing the switchmen and firemen.

Chief Sargent, of the Locomotive Firemen, was seen by a reporter of THE EVENING WORLD at the St. Cloud.

He said he had been up nearly all night going over the matter, and that he was prepared for another day's siege of it.

CHIEF SARGENT TALKS.

"I came to New York," he continued, "at the urgent request of the Executive Board of the Knights of Labor to confer with them in regard to the troubles on the Central road."

"The conference was first called at Buffalo, but as all the members of the Board were not able to attend, there that body decided to call a meeting in this city, so as to hold the conference at headquarters."

"I came down with my party, Messrs. Howard, Wilkinson and Sweeney, right before last to Albany, where we talked over the situation with some of the local leaders and then went on to Mr. Toucey, who was in Albany at that time."

"When we left Albany Mr. Toucey came with us and at his request we went to Mr. Webb's office on our arrival."

"I had a very pleasant and satisfactory interview with Mr. Webb and Mr. Toucey, talking over the strike in a general way, and then went over to see the Executive Committee of the Knights of Labor."

COULD NOT AGREE WITH POWDERLY.

"Last night, as you know, we had our first conference with Mr. Powderly and the Executive Board of the Knights of Labor. No conclusion was arrived at, although we discussed matters at great length, even after the meeting had broken up."

"Several propositions concerning the strike were made, but we could unite on no one of them. I am not at liberty to say what the suggestions were, but when we separated the night was with the understanding that we should meet again tomorrow."

"The Supreme Council as it now stands is fully empowered to order strikes of its own men. We have already obtained the authority to strike the Central road, but we are in every phase of the present controversy."

"This strike is a very momentous and serious matter in all its aspects, and it should not, I think, be entered upon except after the calmest and coolest deliberations."

"It is not one that we can go into hastily, because of its importance, and that is the reason why I wish to impress upon you the necessity of being fully everything in relation to such a strike."

"We must consider the rights of the men, the rights of the employers, and the rights of the public in this matter before taking final action. You know what a general tie-up means. Every road east of Chicago and the Vanderbilt system would be stopped instantly if we should say so."

THIS ISN'T STRIKE TALK.

"I do not believe, now, that the Central road strike is a strike in the sense of extermination against any labor organization. I don't believe it is true of the Knights of Labor."

power to extend the strike if they wish to do so."

Yes.

Chairman Howard and Grand Master Wilkinson both said that no conclusion had been arrived at, but that they were not in a cheerful frame of mind.

Secretary Hayes, of the General Executive Board of the Knights of Labor, seemed to be in a cheerful frame of mind.

"Everything is going our way," he said to an EVENING WORLD reporter, "and when we cannot say that we will reach the end of our deliberations today, there is every prospect that we will get what we want."

"It is not a question of showing to the Supreme Council that the New York Central is making war on the Knights of Labor, although that is the fact. There are many other things that must be taken into consideration."

"The situation is clearing up every day. The Supreme Council are with us and you may be sure that matters will come out all right."

CENTRAL WEAKENED AT BUFFALO.

Committee member John Devlin, who came on from Buffalo this morning, says that orders came yesterday from General Manager Toucey, of the New York Central road, to Supt. Burrows at Buffalo to take back all the firemen on strike.

"I was holding a meeting of the switchmen," he said, "when Yard Master Mahoney came around looking for the firemen to go back to work."

"He said he had orders to reinstate men who were on strike, but that the men would not return to work until they had permission from the leaders of the strike."

"I then learned of the Order for the first time. I went to see some of the men, and after looking into the matter, I came to the conclusion that the Company only wanted to get back some of its men, and that there was no intention to adjust the difficulties that had arisen, and which were at the bottom of the strike."

"I therefore advised the men not to go back until they were certain that they would gain something by it, and they all remained out. Not one went back."

"I was holding a meeting of the switchmen," he said, "when Yard Master Mahoney came around looking for the firemen to go back to work."

"He said he had orders to reinstate men who were on strike, but that the men would not return to work until they had permission from the leaders of the strike."

"I then learned of the Order for the first time. I went to see some of the men, and after looking into the matter, I came to the conclusion that the Company only wanted to get back some of its men, and that there was no intention to adjust the difficulties that had arisen, and which were at the bottom of the strike."

"I therefore advised the men not to go back until they were certain that they would gain something by it, and they all remained out. Not one went back."

"I was holding a meeting of the switchmen," he said, "when Yard Master Mahoney came around looking for the firemen to go back to work."

"He said he had orders to reinstate men who were on strike, but that the men would not return to work until they had permission from the leaders of the strike."

"I then learned of the Order for the first time. I went to see some of the men, and after looking into the matter, I came to the conclusion that the Company only wanted to get back some of its men, and that there was no intention to adjust the difficulties that had arisen, and which were at the bottom of the strike."

"I therefore advised the men not to go back until they were certain that they would gain something by it, and they all remained out. Not one went back."

"I was holding a meeting of the switchmen," he said, "when Yard Master Mahoney came around looking for the firemen to go back to work."

"He said he had orders to reinstate men who were on strike, but that the men would not return to work until they had permission from the leaders of the strike."

"I then learned of the Order for the first time. I went to see some of the men, and after looking into the matter, I came to the conclusion that the Company only wanted to get back some of its men, and that there was no intention to adjust the difficulties that had arisen, and which were at the bottom of the strike."

"I therefore advised the men not to go back until they were certain that they would gain something by it, and they all remained out. Not one went back."

EXTRA DAY AT SARATOGA.

Five Purse Races to Be Decided on a Sloppy Track.

Forerunner, the Favorite, Had to Extend Himself in the First.

SARATOGA RACE TRACK, Aug. 20.—There was a severe fall of rain last night and the track was wet and slow today. The weather, however, was clear and delightful and the attendance at the races was up to the usual extra-day standard.

It was expected that all the horses that could get out would be scratched, but as most of the starters were of the Gunningham class they were to the mind and were not scratched.

FIRST RACE.

For two-year-olds; six furlongs.

Forerunner, the favorite, had to extend himself in the first.

Second race.

For three-year-olds; one mile.

Forerunner, the favorite, had to extend himself in the first.

Third race.

For four-year-olds; one mile.

Forerunner, the favorite, had to extend himself in the first.

Fourth race.

For five-year-olds; one mile.

Forerunner, the favorite, had to extend himself in the first.

Fifth race.

For six-year-olds; one mile.

Forerunner, the favorite, had to extend himself in the first.

Sixth race.

For seven-year-olds; one mile.

Forerunner, the favorite, had to extend himself in the first.

Seventh race.

For eight-year-olds; one mile.

HIS FATAL JEALOUSY.

The Murder of Robert McNeill Graphically Told in Court.

Webster Listens Indifferently to the Witnesses' Stories.

But Weeps as He Sees His Wife in the Room.

Charles Crumley, an actor, fifty-six years old, who has for ten years played the role of "Glen, the Nigger," in Bartley Campbell's "White Slave" Company, under the stage name of Charles Webster, was arraigned at the Jefferson Market Police Court, before Justice Tamm this morning, charged with a murder of cold-blooded, deliberate, and dramatic in its execution as to be almost without precedent in this city.

Webster, as he is generally known, shot and killed Robert McNeill, a young engineer, whom he suspected of undue intimacy with Mrs. Webster, about 9:20 o'clock last night. Webster married his wife fifteen years ago. For the past three years they have lived in a flat at 302 West Twenty-second street.

Charles Crumley, an actor, fifty-six years old, who has for ten years played the role of "Glen, the Nigger," in Bartley Campbell's "White Slave" Company, under the stage name of Charles Webster, was arraigned at the Jefferson Market Police Court, before Justice Tamm this morning, charged with a murder of cold-blooded, deliberate, and dramatic in its execution as to be almost without precedent in this city.

Webster, as he is generally known, shot and killed Robert McNeill, a young engineer, whom he suspected of undue intimacy with Mrs. Webster, about 9:20 o'clock last night. Webster married his wife fifteen years ago. For the past three years they have lived in a flat at 302 West Twenty-second street.

Charles Crumley, an actor, fifty-six years old, who has for ten years played the role of "Glen, the Nigger," in Bartley Campbell's "White Slave" Company, under the stage name of Charles Webster, was arraigned at the Jefferson Market Police Court, before Justice Tamm this morning, charged with a murder of cold-blooded, deliberate, and dramatic in its execution as to be almost without precedent in this city.

Webster, as he is generally known, shot and killed Robert McNeill, a young engineer, whom he suspected of undue intimacy with Mrs. Webster, about 9:20 o'clock last night. Webster married his wife fifteen years ago. For the past three years they have lived in a flat at 302 West Twenty-second street.

Charles Crumley, an actor, fifty-six years old, who has for ten years played the role of "Glen, the Nigger," in Bartley Campbell's "White Slave" Company, under the stage name of Charles Webster, was arraigned at the Jefferson Market Police Court, before Justice Tamm this morning, charged with a murder of cold-blooded, deliberate, and dramatic in its execution as to be almost without precedent in this city.

Webster, as he is generally known, shot and killed Robert McNeill, a young engineer, whom he suspected of undue intimacy with Mrs. Webster, about 9:20 o'clock last night. Webster married his wife fifteen years ago. For the past three years they have lived in a flat at 302 West Twenty-second street.

Charles Crumley, an actor, fifty-six years old, who has for ten years played the role of "Glen, the Nigger," in Bartley Campbell's "White Slave" Company, under the stage name of Charles Webster, was arraigned at the Jefferson Market Police Court, before Justice Tamm this morning, charged with a murder of cold-blooded, deliberate, and dramatic in its execution as to be almost without precedent in this city.

Webster, as he is generally known, shot and killed Robert McNeill, a young engineer, whom he suspected of undue intimacy with Mrs. Webster, about 9:20 o'clock last night. Webster married his wife fifteen years ago. For the past three years they have lived in a flat at 302 West Twenty-second street.

Charles Crumley, an actor, fifty-six years old, who has for ten years played the role of "Glen, the Nigger," in Bartley Campbell's "White Slave" Company, under the stage name of Charles Webster, was arraigned at the Jefferson Market Police Court, before Justice Tamm this morning, charged with a murder of cold-blooded, deliberate, and dramatic in its execution as to be almost without precedent in this city.

Webster, as he is generally known, shot and killed Robert McNeill, a young engineer, whom he suspected of undue intimacy with Mrs. Webster, about 9:20 o'clock last night. Webster married his wife fifteen years ago. For the past three years they have lived in a flat at 302 West Twenty-second street.

Charles Crumley, an actor, fifty-six years old, who has for ten years played the role of "Glen, the Nigger," in Bartley Campbell's "White Slave" Company, under the stage name of Charles Webster, was arraigned at the Jefferson Market Police Court, before Justice Tamm this morning, charged with a murder of cold-blooded, deliberate, and dramatic in its execution as to be almost without precedent in this city.

Webster, as he is generally known, shot and killed Robert McNeill, a young engineer, whom he suspected of undue intimacy with Mrs. Webster, about 9:20 o'clock last night. Webster married his wife fifteen years ago. For the past three years they have lived in a flat at 302 West Twenty-second street.

Charles Crumley, an actor, fifty-six years old, who has for ten years played the role of "Glen, the Nigger," in Bartley Campbell's "White Slave" Company, under the stage name of Charles Webster, was arraigned at the Jefferson Market Police Court, before Justice Tamm this morning, charged with a murder of cold-blooded, deliberate, and dramatic in its execution as to be almost without precedent in this city.

Webster, as he is generally known, shot and killed Robert McNeill, a young engineer, whom he suspected of undue intimacy with Mrs. Webster, about 9:20 o'clock last night. Webster married his wife fifteen years ago. For the past three years they have lived in a flat at 302 West Twenty-second street.

Charles Crumley, an actor, fifty-six years old, who has for ten years played the role of "Glen, the Nigger," in Bartley Campbell's "White Slave" Company, under the stage name of Charles Webster, was arraigned at the Jefferson Market Police Court, before Justice Tamm this morning, charged with a murder of cold-blooded, deliberate, and dramatic in its execution as to be almost without precedent in this city.

Webster, as he is generally known, shot and killed Robert McNeill, a young engineer, whom he suspected of undue intimacy with Mrs. Webster, about 9:20 o'clock last night. Webster married his wife fifteen years ago. For the past three years they have lived in a flat at 302 West Twenty-second street.

Charles Crumley, an actor, fifty-six years old, who has for ten years played the role of "Glen, the Nigger," in Bartley Campbell's "White Slave" Company, under the stage name of Charles Webster, was arraigned at the Jefferson Market Police Court, before Justice Tamm this morning, charged with a murder of cold-blooded, deliberate, and dramatic in its execution as to be almost without precedent in this city.

Webster, as he is generally known, shot and killed Robert McNeill, a young engineer, whom he suspected of undue intimacy with Mrs. Webster, about 9:20 o'clock last night. Webster married his wife fifteen years ago. For the past three years they have lived in a flat at 302 West Twenty-second street.

Charles Crumley, an actor, fifty-six years old, who has for ten years played the role of "Glen, the Nigger," in Bartley Campbell's "White Slave" Company, under the stage name of Charles Webster, was arraigned at the Jefferson Market Police Court, before Justice Tamm this morning, charged with a murder of cold-blooded, deliberate, and dramatic in its execution as to be almost without precedent in this city.

ARTISTS MAY NOW SKETCH IN PROSPECT PARK.

The Murder of Robert McNeill Graphically Told in Court.

Webster Listens Indifferently to the Witnesses' Stories.

But Weeps as He Sees His Wife in the Room.

Charles Crumley, an actor, fifty-six years old, who has for ten years played the role of "Glen, the Nigger," in Bartley Campbell's "White Slave" Company, under the stage name of Charles Webster, was arraigned at the Jefferson Market Police Court, before Justice Tamm this morning, charged with a murder of cold-blooded, deliberate, and dramatic in its execution as to be almost without precedent in this city.

Webster, as he is generally known, shot and killed Robert McNeill, a young engineer, whom he suspected of undue intimacy with Mrs. Webster, about 9:20 o'clock last night. Webster married his wife fifteen years ago. For the past three years they have lived in a flat at 302 West Twenty-second street.

Charles Crumley, an actor, fifty-six years old, who has for ten years played the role of "Glen, the Nigger," in Bartley Campbell's "White Slave" Company, under the stage name of Charles Webster, was arraigned at the Jefferson Market Police Court, before Justice Tamm this morning, charged with a murder of cold-blooded, deliberate, and dramatic in its execution as to be almost without precedent in this city.

Webster, as he is generally known, shot and killed Robert McNeill, a young engineer, whom he suspected of undue intimacy with Mrs. Webster, about 9:20 o'clock last night. Webster married his wife fifteen years ago. For the past three years they have lived in a flat at 302 West Twenty-second street.

Charles Crumley, an actor, fifty-six years old, who has for ten years played the role of "Glen, the Nigger," in Bartley Campbell's "White Slave" Company, under the stage name of Charles Webster, was arraigned at the Jefferson Market Police Court, before Justice Tamm this morning, charged with a murder of cold-blooded, deliberate, and dramatic in its execution as to be almost without precedent in this city.

Webster, as he is generally known, shot and killed Robert McNeill, a young engineer, whom he suspected of undue intimacy with Mrs. Webster, about 9:20 o'clock last night. Webster married his wife fifteen years ago. For the past three years they have lived in a flat at 302 West Twenty-second street.

Charles Crumley, an actor, fifty-six years old, who has for ten years played the role of "Glen, the Nigger," in Bartley Campbell's "White Slave" Company, under the stage name of Charles Webster, was arraigned at the Jefferson Market Police Court, before Justice Tamm this morning, charged with a murder of cold-blooded, deliberate, and dramatic in its execution as to be almost without precedent in this city.

Webster, as he is generally known, shot and killed Robert McNeill, a young engineer, whom he suspected of undue intimacy with Mrs. Webster, about 9:20 o'clock last night. Webster married his wife fifteen years ago. For the past three years they have lived in a flat at 302 West Twenty-second street.

Charles Crumley, an actor, fifty-six years old, who has for ten years played the role of "Glen, the Nigger," in Bartley Campbell's "White Slave" Company, under the stage name of Charles Webster, was arraigned at the Jefferson Market Police Court, before Justice Tamm this morning, charged with a murder of cold-blooded, deliberate, and dramatic in its execution as to be almost without precedent in this city.

Webster, as he is generally known, shot and killed Robert McNeill, a young engineer, whom he suspected of undue intimacy with Mrs. Webster, about 9:20 o'clock last night. Webster married his wife fifteen years ago. For the past three years they have lived in a flat at 302 West Twenty-second street.

Charles Crumley, an actor, fifty-six years old, who has for ten years played the role of "Glen, the Nigger," in Bartley Campbell's "White Slave" Company, under the stage name of Charles Webster, was arraigned at the Jefferson Market Police Court, before Justice Tamm this morning, charged with a murder of cold-blooded, deliberate, and dramatic in its execution as to be almost without precedent in this city.

Webster, as he is generally known, shot and killed Robert McNeill, a young engineer, whom he suspected of undue intimacy with Mrs. Webster, about 9:20 o'clock last night. Webster married his wife fifteen years ago. For the past three years they have lived in a flat at 302 West Twenty-second street.

Charles Crumley, an actor, fifty-six years old, who has for ten years played the role of "Glen, the Nigger," in Bartley Campbell's "White Slave" Company, under the stage name of Charles Webster, was arraigned at the Jefferson Market Police Court, before Justice Tamm this morning, charged with a murder of cold-blooded, deliberate, and dramatic in its execution as to be almost without precedent in this city.

Webster, as he is generally known, shot and killed Robert McNeill, a young engineer, whom he suspected of undue intimacy with Mrs. Webster, about 9:20 o'clock last night. Webster married his wife fifteen years ago. For the past three years they have lived in a flat at 302 West Twenty-second street.

Charles Crumley, an actor, fifty-six years old, who has for ten years played the role of "Glen, the Nigger," in Bartley Campbell's "White Slave" Company, under the stage name of Charles Webster, was arraigned at the Jefferson Market Police Court, before Justice Tamm this morning, charged with a murder of cold-blooded, deliberate, and dramatic in its execution as to be almost without precedent in this city.

Webster, as he is generally known, shot and killed Robert McNeill, a young engineer, whom he suspected of undue intimacy with Mrs. Webster, about 9:20 o'clock last night. Webster married his wife fifteen years ago. For the past three years they have lived in a flat at 302 West Twenty-second street.

Charles Crumley, an actor, fifty-six years old, who has for ten years played the role of "Glen, the Nigger," in Bartley Campbell's "White Slave" Company, under the stage name of Charles Webster, was arraigned at the Jefferson Market Police Court, before Justice Tamm this morning, charged with a murder of cold-blooded, deliberate, and dramatic in its execution as to be almost without precedent in this city.

Webster, as he is generally known, shot and killed Robert McNeill, a young engineer, whom he suspected of undue intimacy with Mrs. Webster, about 9:20 o'clock last night. Webster married his wife fifteen years ago. For the past three years they have lived in a flat at 302 West Twenty-second street.

Charles Crumley, an actor, fifty-six years old, who has for ten years played the role of "Glen, the Nigger," in Bartley Campbell's "White Slave" Company, under the stage name of Charles Webster, was arraigned at the Jefferson Market Police Court, before Justice Tamm this morning, charged with a murder of cold-blooded, deliberate, and dramatic in its execution as to be almost without precedent in this city.

Webster, as he is generally known, shot and killed Robert McNeill, a young engineer, whom he suspected of undue intimacy with Mrs. Webster, about 9:20 o'clock last night. Webster married his wife fifteen years ago. For the past three years they have lived in a flat at 302 West Twenty-second street.

Charles Crumley, an actor, fifty-six years old, who has for ten years played the role of "Glen, the Nigger," in Bartley Campbell's "White Slave" Company, under the stage name of Charles Webster, was arraigned at the Jefferson Market Police Court, before Justice Tamm this morning, charged with a murder of cold-blooded, deliberate, and dramatic in its execution as to be almost without precedent in this city.

LAST EDITION TORNADO SWEEP.

Grief and Desolation Left by the Storm in Wilkesbarre.

The Whirling Wind Swept a Wife Path Through the Town.

Cosy Homes Destroyed or Turned Into Abodes of Misery.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Aug. 20.—The scene here to-day, after yesterday's great cyclone, is one of almost hopeless confusion.

Homes wrecked or shattered stand in every direction, many with their roofs gone and drenched with the heavy rain which followed the tornado.

The streets are filled with rubbish of all sorts, bricks, timber, broken branches of trees and fragments of houses.

The exact damage cannot be told for many hours, though many places it is $1,000,000, and it will be months before all the damage can be repaired.

Tin roofers and building mechanics have been telegraphed for, and the work of restoration will be promptly taken up.

Most of those who were injured in the cyclone are doing well to-day, and no further deaths have been reported.

Some are still reported missing, but it is hoped that they have merely escaped notice in the confusion, and that the list of deaths will not be much increased.

Up to the present hour it is as follows: NERTIE THOMPSON, colored. Mrs. MARY J. MCGINLEY and child. Mrs. MARY J. MCGINLEY.

JOHN MARTIN, a baker; buried beneath a falling smokestack. His two horses were also killed.

JOHN FARR, a laborer in the pool mill at the Hazard Works; taken from the debris beneath a falling chimney.

HERBERT BENDERMEYER, salesman for Hartley & Co., grocery; instantly killed by falling in of Brown's business block.

BANKER HOWE, machinist at Hazard Works; killed by falling timber.

PETER THOMPSON, killed in Fred Jacob's hotel, which was wrecked.

FRANK WELSH, back broken; John Honch, injured internally and on the head; John Long.

George Gresh, Simon Kiefer, Jacob Bergold, Mrs. Nicholson and child